control for the Feeble, and Important Suggestions for the health.—Morse's Invigorating Bikir or Corein.—The great strength sustaining and health-newwing preparation introduced by Dr. M. Morse, the colebrated Oriental traveller and chemist, has become so well known throughout this country and Europe, that no physician, who walkes his reputation, would wenture to admit himself ignorants of its extraordinary properties, or think of questioning its wonderful cures.

The prominent guarantee of the value of any invention or discovery which bears the stamp of his approval, and is his instance, an invigorant is offered to the world, the ingredical art, and which the was the first to enlist in the science of medical art, and which the was the first to enlist in the science of medical art, and which the health of accurate to be the only stimulant known that exhilerates and strengthens the stamp of the approval, and in the instance, an invited on the the faculty in England. Scatland, France, Prussis, and Beigimu, have declared to be the only stimulant known that exhilerates and strengthens the system, without centailing the relaxation and depression which have herselfore been supposed to be the necessary consequences of using artificial means to increase the amount of vital energy in the human system. There are, therefore, solid grounds for pronouncing the introduction of Morse's invigorating Elizir or C. relial, the great medical event of the nia eteenth cantury. As such it has been received by the public; and if the history of the healing art were ransacked from the era of Hippocrates to the present day, no such instance of undounded confidence in size entraitive properties of any medicine could be adduced as appears upon the record in favor of this properties.
